Get the Clinical Research Guide in Your State!

People who are sick or healthy can participate in these research studies.

Clinical Research Studies are important in the development, testing, and marketing of all new medicines and treatments today. These studies are important in evaluating how medicine can be used to help people. Some studies involve drug-free treatment programs and research into new foodstuffs such as "fat-free" or "low-sodium" products.

Both the federal government and private industry pay for Clinical Research. Physicians must get approval from the Food and Drug Administration to conduct the study. FDA ensures that the study does not present any unnecessary risk to participants.

People participate in Research Studies to:

- Receive free treatment for pre-existing conditions, such as asthma or diabetes.
- Gain access to promising medications that are currently unavailable to customers.
- Receive free treatment for addiction to drugs or alcohol.
- Gain quick and easy cash compensation.

Receive Free Medical Care! Get Paid a lot of money for participating. FIND OUT if YOU are eligible! The best way is to call the clinic and request specific participant criteria and an application.
